Who is Daniel Adeyemi?

Daniel Adeyemi, 23, of Holmes Close, Netley, appeared at Southampton Crown Court on December 15, where he was sentenced to two and a half years imprisonment for his involvement in the county line known as 'GUS'. Police staff investigator Adam Cresswell, who led the investigation, said: "These networks destroy lives.

Who is Dr Adeyemi?

Dr Adeyemi is a locally trained and qualified Obstetrics and Gynaecology Specialist. He undertook his training in Canberra and Sydney. Furthermore, he holds a Fellowship of the Royal Australian and New Zealand College of Obstetricians and Gynaecologists (FRANZCOG) and underwent training in reproductive medicine.

Why did Adeyemi pleaded guilty?

Adeyemi pleaded guilty to being concerned in the supply of crack cocaine, admitting that the phones linked to the line were registered to him. However, he claimed he was not responsible for sending the 'marketing messages' and was only holding the phones on behalf of others.

What happened to Adeyemi?

Adeyemi was identified by the Met's Operation Orochi team as the holder of the GUS line, which was active between October 2024 and January 2025. On February 11, officers executed warrants at addresses in London and Netley. Adeyemi was located in a room at an address on Bancroft Gardens in Harrow alongside nine wraps of crack cocaine and cannabis.
